

The wheat Load Arbitrager®

What is Arbitrage?

Arbitrage is the practice of taking advantage of a price difference between two or more buyers. There were some growers last year that did this with feed wheat, why not do it with the whole crop?

The marketers do it and make a profit now so can you!

The Wheat Load Arbitrager systematically calculates and identifies the most profitable combination of loads to deliver against your contracts to maximise your total harvest income.

Grain growers have more marketing options available to them, each have different objectives and potentially vastly different financial results.

While developing a marketing strategy is essential, the majority of growers fail to allocate their loads to their cash contracts and pool alternatives to the best possible advantage.

Each growers load of wheat is worth a different amount depending on what cash and pool contracts they have and who they market their grain through, correct allocation of specific loads of wheat to particular contracts or pools has a large bearing on the final harvest returns. You could be missing out on $5/t - $8/t by incorrect load allocation.

The Arbitrager tells you the best combination of loads to deliver to maximise harvest returns.

Also works for your Barley and Canola
